

Remarkable Women Book Club

Join in the fun reading about remarkable, inspiring women. Biographies, historical fiction, memoirs, and more ... open to suggestions too.

Our first book is "I Made Lemonade" by Ela Pandya, a fellow Zontian telling her own story of arranged marriage and growing up in India.

Ela is a girl born to progressive parents in India. She describes the inner conflicts she feels as a girl with higher education about to be arranged to marry. She eventually does agree to marry someone who is in America to keep her parents happy and in this book, she takes us on the journey of her immigration, culture shock, and becoming mother.

Want to participate? Here's how:

1. Email us at info@zonta-conejo.org
2. Purchase the book at Amazon ($16.99), download on Kindle, or purchase an author-signed one from us for $20.
3. Join us in mid-May (tbd) to discuss. Both in-person (Thousand Oaks) and virtual options are available.

Adjusting to a life with a stranger in a new country brought challenging, funny, and scary situations which she navigated with strength, and daring that she has portrayed through her yet fresh perspectives of her birth country.
